SCHOOL REPORT.

FELLOW CITIZENS:—In compliance with the requirements of the laws, we have the honor to present the following report of your schools for the year ending March, 1870:

DISTRICT NO. 1.

Miss SERENA P. WHITNEY, Teacher the four terms.

This school was graded, and each grade allowed its due quota of schooling. We believe that all who visited the school, or had opportunity of judging of the progress made, are agreed as to the utility of this arrangement. The three first terms were eminently successful, not a murmur of dissatisfaction being heard, so far as we know. The winter term, however, was less prosperous. Two or three large boys persisted in taking liberties which were utterly subversive to good order. Miss Whitney temporized with them too long. They should have been reduced to submission, or compelled to leave the school. Miss Whitney has had a long and successful experience in teaching in this town, and the fact of her having committed some errors of judgment in the management of this term, ought not to detract from her well-earned reputation as a teacher. The closing examination gave general satisfaction.

DISTRICT NO. 2.

Summer Term—FANNIE H. NESMITH, Teacher.

Miss Nesmith is a good scholar, and most emphatically a live teacher. She rendered good service to this large and backward school.

Winter Term—EMMA D. PUTNAM, Teacher.

Miss Putnam is more than an average scholar and a faithful and energetic teacher. Her efforts here, however, were partially thwarted by the disgraceful conduct of a few large boys, who set at defiance the authority of the teacher, and thereby sadly deranged the order of the school. We regard it as a mistaken leniency, both of teacher and committee, in allowing these boys to continue their connection with the school. Had they been summarily expelled, it would have been for the interest of the school. No teacher, under the most favorable circumstances, can do justice to a school of this size with such a variety of attainments. We hope to see it properly graded before another winter. Register imperfect.

DISTRICT NO. 3.

Summer Term—MEDIA MCILVIN, Teacher.

Miss McIlvin commenced this school with many misgivings, because of its being in her native district; but she went through with the entire term to the general satisfaction of the district and your committee. The closing examination was not exceeded in interest by any in town, and reflected much credit upon both teacher and pupils.

Winter Term—H. D. CHAPIN, Teacher.

In a somewhat extended experience, it has seldom been our fortune to teach a pleasanter school than this,—scholars kind and respectful, and ambitious to excel in their studies. Here are some of the best scholars in town, and some, we prophesy, that will "make their mark" in life. We aimed to make our instructions practical, giving special prominence to those branches of study which the pupil would be most likely to need in the every-day affairs of life. How far we succeeded in these efforts, the patrons of the school must decide.

DISTRICT NO. 4.

LUCRETIA M. ROBINSON, Teacher both terms.

On our first visit to this school we gave it a pretty thorough examination, and were utterly amazed to see how much ground the pupils had been over, and how little they knew of their several studies. In no other school in town did there seem to be such a lack of thoroughness. The improvement, however, at the close of the term was marked, and we are satisfied that Miss

Robinson labored faithfully and successfully. If some of the labor spent in the algebra class had been devoted to practical arithmetic and the spelling book, we think it would have been infinitely more valuable to the pupils. The classes in geography and grammar showed great improvement.

DISTRICT NO. 5.

Summer Term—LILLA C. HARDY, Teacher.

Miss Hardy, though very young, is a superior scholar, and has an aptitude for teaching that would do credit to a veteran. The term was prosperous, and gave unqualified satisfaction to all. Register imperfect.

Winter Term—MEDIA M. MCILVIN, Teacher.

The same qualities that Miss McIlvin exhibited with such marked success in No. 3, she brought to bear most effectually during this term, and if the progress was not so apparent, it was through no lack of ability or effort on her part. This is one of the most backward schools in town, and it will require extra efforts to raise it to anything like a respectable standing. Spelling, wretched.

DISTRICT NO. 6.

NELLIE J. CLEMENT, Teacher both terms.

Miss Clement is an accurate and thorough scholar, and has that indomitable energy and perseverance that are sure to command success in the school room. We but echo the general sentiment of the district in saying that the school made rapid progress while under her instruction. As a teacher of arithmetic, both mental and written, Miss Clement has no superior in town.

DISTRICT NO. 7.

Summer Term—MARY E. WHITTEMORE, Teacher.

Miss Whittemore sustained an excellent examination, but her extreme youth and lack of confidence in her own abilities, operated against her in the management of this school. With a little more age and experience, Miss Whittemore will make a first-class teacher.

Winter Term—FANNIE M. HENSHAW, Teacher.

We have seldom seen greater progress than was made during this term. Miss Henshaw is eminently a practical teacher. The closing examination was highly creditable, and we wish that more of the parents could have been present on the occasion. We believe there is a prudential committee in the district, but we failed to meet him during any of our visits to the school, nor do we see his name on the list of visitors in the register. Register imperfect.

DISTRICT NO. 9.

Summer Term—HANNAH M. CHAMPNEY, Teacher.

This short term of only three weeks of course accomplished but little. The conduct of one or two families, including the agent's, in keeping their children from school, and refusing to board their quota, is deserving special rebuke. Miss Champney is a well qualified and faithful teacher, and would have taught a good school, had she received that encouragement and support which was her due. There is more contention and quarreling over school matters in this little district than in the whole town besides. The effect is plainly to be seen in the backward condition of the school.

Fall Term—EMILY F. TUTTLE, Teacher.

Miss Tuttle, though young and inexperienced, did herself great credit in the management of this school. The closing examination was exceedingly interesting, and showed a reasonable progress.

DISTRICT NO. 12.

Summer Term—JULIA J. LEWIS, Teacher.

Another good teacher and a profitable term of school. In the ability to interest small children in their studies, and teach them just what they need to know, Miss Lewis has few equals. It is deeply to be regretted that Miss Lewis, by continued ill health, should be debarred from laboring in a sphere for which she is so pre-eminently fitted. The few parents in this district are deeply interested in their school, and they show their interest by frequent attendance in the school room.

Winter Term—NELLIE J. CLEMENT, Teacher.

During this term Miss Clement fully sustained the reputation accorded to her as a teacher in No 6. The general appearance of the school was good, and the instructions eminently practical and thorough.

DISTRICT NO. 13.

JENNIE E. GRAY, Teacher both terms.

Miss Gray is an excellent scholar, and taught this school with the usual good success that has characterized all her teaching. This school, though one of the smallest in town, ranks well in point of scholarship. The class in written arithmetic did not realize our expectations.

REMARKS.

Knowing but little in regard to the condition of the schools previous to entering upon the discharge of our duties, we cannot speak intelligently of their standing as compared with other years. But judging from the character of the teachers, as well as from a close inspection of the schools, we are inclined to the belief that substantial progress has been made. We have had a corps of earnest, faithful teachers, and, so far as teaching the text books is concerned, they have done all that could be reasonably expected of them. But the amount of schooling we receive is entirely inadequate to our wants, and to the demands of the times in which we live. How much can we expect our children to learn during these short terms of school, with so long time intervening from the close of one until the commencement of another? We need an additional term of at least ten weeks in each district, and we could have it, if proper efforts were made. We would not have the town raise more money by taxation, for we believe that all is derived from that source that the depressed condition of our finances will warrant. But those of us who have children to educate could easily support a select school for that time, and do it much cheaper than to send off at a distance to school.

We would suggest that several of the smaller districts should so arrange the time of commencing their schools that there could be an interchange of attendance from one district to the other This would make the school room interesting, and be a mutual benefit to the respective districts.

We congratulate the people of No. 1 on the completion of their beautiful school house, and believe that the money there invested will yield a rich return. It certainly is an ornament to that thriving village, and we hope will mark a new era in the educational interests of the town. Its proximity to the Hall is a matter of deep regret.

We have introduced Sanders' Readers and Spellers, not because of any particular objection to the old ones, but because the latter had been so long in use. The exchange was effected on very favorable terms, and, so far as we know, they are giving unqualified satisfaction.

A great evil from which our schools suffer is the desire of parents to push their children ahead in their studies faster than they are qualified to go. The spelling book, Colburn's Arithmetic and writing are superseded by higher and more pretentious studies. Now, what is the result? A generation is coming on the stage most shamefully deficient in these primary branches. Why, there is not a first-class speller in any school in town. I am sorry to say that our teachers are not all models in this respect. More than half the registers are sadly marred by inaccuracies in spelling. We notice "persued," "schollar," "primmer," "untill," "seris," "Jhonnie," "Guyot's Geographys," "Colboun's Arithmetic," "Brown's grammer," and many others. What a burlesque on scholarship!

Again, we regard the method of teaching arithmetic as taught in too many of our schools little less than a sheer waste of time. The pupil is taught to recite dry abstract rules and definitions, which to him are only meaningless sounds. In them he sees no relation to anything within the range of his experience, and knows nothing of their application. But he "ciphers on," only anxious to get "through the book," and when that is done he cheats himself into the belief that he knows enough of arithmetic and is prepared for something higher. We have seen classes during the past winter who had ciphered through their arithmetic, and several of whom had been discussing abstruse problems in algebra, but on being asked the cost of twenty-eight cubic feet of wood at $9 per cord, gave answers ranging from fourteen to nine hundred dollars. To scores of other simple practical questions, we have received equally random answers. If that little jewel of an arithmetic, Colburn's First Lessons, was thoroughly mastered, we should have less fruitless groping in this important study. The text-book is good in its place, but it should be used by the teacher mostly for suggestions, and the teacher who cannot conduct a recitation without a servile dependence on it, we regard as unfit for his work.

In closing our connection with the schools in the capacity of superintendent, we cannot forbear to urge upon your attention the subject of common school education, as the most important question affecting the interests of the town. It is to the common school that the great masses of the rising generation must look for that elementary training that is to serve as a basis of a thorough education; and no community can afford to see its banner trailing in the dust. It is an institution that crossed the Atlantic with our Pilgrim Fathers, or rather it is the offspring of religious freedom, first rocked in a Plymouth cradle, since which it has traveled all over our land, the effectual ally of religion, liberty and civilization. It has the ring of true democracy about it, for it is at the public school that the children of all grades can meet on equal terms, while "merit" is the only acknowledged standard by which favors are granted or rewards distributed. Let us, then, recommend this institution by exhibiting its glorious fruits. Let parents bequeath to their children less, if need be, of gold and silver, and more of knowledge and virtue. Labor less for the "meat that perisheth," and more for developing those powers of intellect and that love of truth and rectitude which alone constitute man as made in the image of God.

We desire, in conclusion, to express our thanks to those friends who have received us so kindly to their homes, while on visits to their schools, and to the teachers and pupils throughout the town, for the uniform respect and courtesy with which we have been treated.

H. D. CHAPIN, S. S. Committee.
